A New Back for an Old One—How it is Done in Maine.

The back aches at times with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one.

Mrs. E. G. Carver, 98 Oak St., Lewiston, Me., says:—"For about two weeks last January I had such an acute attack of pain in the back that when stooping or lifting I was in misery. Reading about Doane's Kidney Pills I got a box at a drug store. They helped me from the first and I continued taking them until the pain and lameness disappeared. I am now free from these troubles, and give all the credit to Doan's Kidney Pills. For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and no other."

From Out the Depths.

That mark of rank in nature,
Is capacity for pain.
That mark of the sufferer,
Lends a sweetness to the strain.
The dreamer, like a mirror to the soul,
Ever reflects in song his joy or pain.
Reflects the joy, in aftermath of smiles,
Breathes forth the glad, answering refrain.
Brings forth from out the caverns of the soul,
The heart's deep chambers where all thoughts abide;
Impulses of disappointments and of pain,
And all the passions, smiles and tears beside.
As the wanderer from bleak, and breast and throat,
Pours forth in song, joyfully or sad,
The intense impulse of his being small,
If happily it be, the song is glad.
A song inspiring from the dreamer's mind
Coming from out a heart that's firm and true,
The nature of its birthplace shows and clear,
And falls as gently as the evening dew.
On real, and vast is the dreamer's land of song.
What's the sky, light fairy tales are his,
Singing in airy cadence, of mystic economies,
Of weal or woe, bright or sad mystic tales.
And so the strain of song reflects the mind,
It bases the mind, of conscious material wrong.
So crude the song that all would fain forego.
But he will be good, the singer be right,
If heaven's reflection purifies the soul.
Sweet strains of thought respond from out the depths.
An echoing song vibrates from pole to pole.
JENNIE E. SNOW KIMBALL.

A Farm Whose Crop Is Timber.

In every state of the Union, there are many tracts of so-called agricultural land, which, owing to their hilly character, poor soil, or numerous boulders, are not suitable for farming. The owners of such tracts are often at a loss to know what to do with them.

Without question, the best use to which land of this kind can be put is to plant it with trees. One of the fundamental principles of forest economics is, that soil which is not good enough to make the growing of cereal crops profitable should be devoted to the production of wood crops. This does not mean that trees grow better on poor soil than on fertile soil. They will, of course, grow better on fertile soil. But, in proportion to the money invested, betters are secured from trees planted on the less valuable land.

Most of the cone bearing trees, and many hardwoods, will thrive in soil of medium fertility. All trees, however, do not thrive on poor, sandy ridges, or on hillsides where the soil is thin. Black walnut, hardy catalpa, and white oak for their best development, require a deep, fertile soil, well watered and well drained, and it is not advisable to plant them where these requirements are not met.

An Ohio farmer is solving the problem of what to do with the worn-out farm. He owns an old homestead of sixty acres which he is desirous of keeping in the family. He does not live on the place, however, and farming has been a losing proposition. He has, therefore, decided to plant the entire tract with trees. He has already planted 35,000 Norway spruce, and three and one-half feet apart each way, on an area of about eleven acres. These trees will be cut, as they become large enough, for Christmas trees.

Chestnut seedlings will be planted in the spaces left by the removal of the spruce, and it is expected that they will begin to come into bearing when the last spruce is cut. In addition to the spruce and chestnut, black locust, elm, box-elder and sycamore have been planted. It is planned to put the entire sixty acres in forest within five or six years. The owner is wise in planting several kinds of trees instead of confining himself to one species. His forest will be producing six or seven kinds of lumber, chestnuts, and Christmas trees, at the same time.

When to Have Fish.

The housewife must know at what seasons the various fish are good. Bass (black), bass (sea), bass (striped), is good from June 1 to January 1, while bluefish from May 1 to November 1. Pickerel, though they can be obtained as late as December. Butterfish are best from October to May; codfish all the year; carp (common) from July to November; carp (German) from October to May; eels all the year; founders, all the year; fresh mackerel (Spanish) from April to December; herring, from May to November; mullet, from June to November; perch, from September to June.

Pickerel is good all the year, while herring is best from March to April and porgies from June to November. Red snapper run from October to April; salmon (Kennebec), from May to October; salmon (Western) from August to June; sheephead (native) from May to November; skate, from September to July, and salmon trout most of the year.

Smelts are excellent from August to April; English sole from November to May; sturgeon from June to October and brook trout from April to September.

Then the delicious weakfish are very appetizing from April to December; whitefish, from November to March; may, in the spring, and whitebait from May to April, says the New York Evening Telegram.

Clams (hard) are eatable all the year; clams (soft) from May to October 15; and crabs (hard), throughout the entire year.

Crabs (soft) are good from May 1 to October 15; crawfish, all the year; lobsters all the year, and mussels from May to October.

Eat oysters from September to May; scallops, from September to April; prawns, from June to November; terrapin, from November to June; shrimps from March 15 to June 1 and September 15 to October 15.

The days are now reported one-half hour shorter.
The advantage of taking time by the forelock, never better illustrated than in the present baying season.
The reason cats dislike water is because there is nothing oily about their fur. Consequently it is easily wetted and does not dry quickly.

NORTH BRIDGTON.

A Fine Entertainment.

A fine entertainment was given on the evening of the 18th by the guests of St. Albans, in Walker Memorial, Mr. Lindholm, of the Arison Society, New York, rendered some fine selections. The Misses Lightfoot gave instrumental and vocal pieces, also Master Freddie Lightfoot, a six-years old lad, sang very prettily, was heartily encored. Bert Clark, refined white and black-face humorist, gave comic readings. He says, "We need to laugh more and worry less. Pure fun is a good tonic." The whole affair was very enjoyable.

Jessie F. Hill, head superintendent in cloak department, Best Bros. New York, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. H. W. Allen.

E. Josephine Spooner, instructor in household economics at Simmons college, is spending her eighth summer in "dear old North Bridgton."

"Miss I. C. Johansen, who is studying to be a nurse at McLean hospital, Somerville, is spending her vacation here, also Dasey Wells, who is studying at Rhode Island hospital, Providence, R. I., is at her old home."

E. H. Hunter, professor in Dartmouth college, accompanied by Mr. Boardman of Somerville, Mr. and Mrs. Vealy of Hyde Park, arrived the 10th for a week's stay at Weelander Cottage. Mr. Hunter took along his "fine naphtha launch" and a good supply of golfing.

Juliet A. Griffin is spending a week with her friend, Mrs. Ellen Decker, of Concord, Mass., who has purchased the old Farnsworth homestead, making extensive repairs both interior and exterior. It is now considered the finest residence in our village.

NORTHEAST LOVELL.

Bertha Whitehouse has returned from N. W. Palmer's and is at home.
Miss Edith Sears of Concord is with her sister, Mrs. E. C. Feltie.
Charles Kendall and family and sister, Fannie, are at their father's, Albert Kendall's.

Mr. and Mrs. Orrington Rowe are rejoicing over the birth of a baby boy, born July 17th.

There was quite a family reunion at Albert Kendall's, Sunday. There were twenty-four as follows: Mr. and Mrs. John Kendall and two children, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kendall and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Will Bennett and four children, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Kendall, Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Andrews and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Adna Rowe and Mr. Mason.

Schuman F. Barker and Bessie E. Heald were united in marriage, Wednesday, June 17th, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Heald. They both have attended the Fryeburg academy. Mr. and Mrs. Barker have a lot of friends who wish them great prosperity and happiness. They will reside in Fryeburg. They had a reception, July 3d.

WEST LOVELL.

Z. McAllister's sow has a brood of eight pigs.
G. W. Andrews' lower cottage is occupied by New York parties.
John A. Fox and Z. McAllister have bought meadow on Cold river.

Mrs. Charles Brackett of Sweden is visiting her uncle, G. C. Lord.
Mr. and Mrs. Guy Fox, with two children, are visiting relatives here.

Henry Rosenbloom and his Littlefield were in the place, Wednesday, with their peddle carts.
Oris LeBaron and wife are at The Pioneer, east side Lake Kezar. Oris will work for the Hitches again this season.

WEST SUMNER.

Harriet J. Merrill of Rumford is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Howe.
Mrs. H. J. Howe has been to Rumford, Friday, returning Tuesday. Her daughter's husband, L. P. Merrill, is very sick.

Mrs. Helen Robertson went to Harrington, Tuesday to remain the rest of the summer. Her son, E. Robertson of Cambridge, Mass., will meet her there, it being their home where they own real estate.

The Original Olympic Games.

Every few years, accordingly as the moon which marked the Greek midsummer drew to its full, a pilgrimage of all the best and most vigorous of the Hellenes went forth, first through Olympia in Elis, the small State on the western coast of the Peloponnesus, a flat space, with its natural barriers of mountain and river, some 15 miles from the festival herald went forth, first through Elis, thence throughout Greece, to proclaim a truce, during which all fighting between city and city, State and State, would cease, so as to allow a whole month of peace during which the Hellenic youth should be able to travel unmolested and unhindered from the farthest settlements of the race—it might be from Marseilles or the Crimea—in order to make the offering of its vigor and its plecty to the Olympian Zeus in Elis.

The plain of Olympia was hallowed ground, dedicated to Zeus, and contained on its northern side the Altis, or temple of that god, that of Hera, and altars to Demeter and Aphrodite, and was adorned as time went on, with the most exquisite productions of Hellenic art, including the statue of Zeus by Phidias, that same statue from which he removed and weighed the gold in order to disprove the accusation that he had been guilty of peculation in his use of precious metal. For the rest, as a place protected by its special sanctity, the Altis contained the treasure houses of many of the Hellenic States.

No pains were spared to prevent the entrance of any competitors in the games who should be lacking of character or piety profane the religious nature of the festival or of the hallowed ground upon which it was celebrated. The first qualification was that of pure Hellenic blood, but no youth who had been branded by his own State for any disgraceful offense, or was known to have sinned against the divine laws, was allowed to compete. Lack of patriotism was sufficient to exclude a competitor. Thus the horses of Hieron of Syracuse were excluded, at the instance of Themistocles, because he had to take part with his countrymen in resisting the Persian danger.

The days are now reported one-half hour shorter.
The advantage of taking time by the forelock, never better illustrated than in the present baying season.
The reason cats dislike water is because there is nothing oily about their fur. Consequently it is easily wetted and does not dry quickly.

Watermelon Time.
When the summer days are heavy with the
sun's unending heat,
When the rustic lad makes footprints of his bare and sunburned feet
In the rich dust, like flour, down the shaded country road;
When the sky's a splendid setting for an ametizing ode,
When the leaves are hung like lacework from
the tallest limbs and boughs,
And like pendulums in motion go the tails of grazing cows;
When the youngster risks his garments at a
stealthy crawl and climb, Underneath a barbed-wire fence, I know it's
watermelon time.
When the fields are ripe for harvest and from
green are turning gold,
When the cornstalks, tall and yellow, stand
like sentinels of old,
When the scarecrow's empty garments hang quite still the life-long day,
And have not a flapping sleeve the once to scare the birds away,
When the rustic leaves the beaten path and by the rail fence goes To gaze in wonder that he so thick in rows and
rows and rows;
With eyes alight and watering mouth and lagging steps, 'tis then
I know that watermelon time has come around again.
When the nights are long in coming and the golden harvest moon
For the predatory youngsters times its rising
quite too soon;
When the bullock's deep-mouthed growling
wakes the household
And suspicious shadows flicker where the
melon vines may creep;
When the patter of footfalls sounds upon the dusty road
And a treadless dog goes bearing off a round
and striped load;
When girational excursions are discussed all
through the day,
Then I know that watermelon time is not so
far away.
When at night, beset, beset, beset, mother
searches for the draft
That shall cure the hasty colic, and with splendid handcraft
Mixes in a soothing potion that quiets Jim or Jack,
Who is full of writhing torments from his
swollen front to back;
When, awakened from his slumber in the middle of the night,
Mother's youngest begs for medicine and
loudly cries for light,
When hot water bags are carried up the stairs,
'tis then that I'm Quite assured it is the heyday of the watermelon time.

Bill Sewall.
Roosevelt in Maine Woods—Roosevelt's Duel—Letter from Theodore.
Bill Sewall is just the sort of a man whom a man like Roosevelt would admire. A simple, truthful, frank child of the woods, with the honesty of the woods
in his bronzed countenance; tall, angular, Grecian of feature, blue-eyed, of the Anglo-Saxon type; self taught, intelligent, teeming with lore gleaned from Nature's open book; lover of animals, true sportsman, rather diffident by nature; firm friend, brave and tireless in the woods.
It was such a man whom young Roosevelt met when, during and after his course at Harvard, he went to Island Falls, on direction of his uncle, Robert Roosevelt, who had known Bill Sewall as guide and host in the Maine woods.
"When Theodore came here," said
Bill to the writer, and there was a deep admiration all through his talk on Roosevelt, "I thought he wasn't a very robust youth, but I soon got over that notion,
for in the woods with me he would insist on toting the heaviest end of the canoe across the carry, and in doing the host share of the chores about camp. Best made it I suggested otherwise. I never heard him complain of fatigue, although I was frequently on the point of giving up from sheer weariness."
"One day," said Bill, "I found Theodore sitting in deep thought on a log near the camp. He was silent and uncommunative for a long time. I had never seen him in this mood before, and it troubled me greatly. He had graduated from Harvard last year. That night while we sat alone in camp, he suddenly turned to me, and speaking in a determined tone, said: 'Bill, this has been the most important and fateful day in my life. Can you guess what I have about my future life? what I will make of myself; what I will become, in short
—my career.'
"I've come to the parting of the ways.
College days are over and beyond this forest lies great work for me. Best to live close to Nature, study life in woods
and the open, the birds, flowers, plants,
and all the wealth of Nature that God has endowed us with, but today I have decided differently.
"I have made up my mind, and nothing can swerve me from my decision,
that I shall devote my life to my country,
to the people and the people's interests.
That, I believe, is man's highest, noblest duty."
"After that," continued Bill, "Theodore was a changed young man. Shortly afterwards, he left me, saying that I would hear from him frequently, and as we shook hands, I felt that there lay in waiting for my friend, Theodore, great things beyond the forest."
The story of how Roosevelt, sorely afflicted in the death of his first wife, sought the wilds of the West to try and forget his grief, sent to Bill Sewall and his friend, Bill Dow, of Island Falls, to come out to the Band Lands of Dakota with him, is familiar reading; and of how Bill Sewall, manager of his ranch, once tearfully besought Roosevelt not to meet the Marquis of Bute in a rifle duel, in which Roosevelt had chosen the weapons
and set the pace limit.

"I'll never forget that morning," said
Bill. "The marquis had been stampeding Roosevelt's cattle and branding them as his own. Theodore told him to quit.
He sent an insulting answer. Theodore replied that he would meet him next morning at sunrise, with rifles at 30 paces. I told him that it was suicide, as his eyesight was not very good. Theodore got mad at me for my interference and told me that he had chosen me as his second and to shut up. 'Twas like going to a funeral, I thought, as we rode across that lonely alkali desert at daylight, Theodore riding in front as silent as Napoleon, Bill Dow and me bringing up the rear and hoping that there would be an earthquake or something else happen.
"All was still as death at the ranch of the marquis. Theodore seized a rifle and barged the butt on the door. A head came out of the window and Theodore then demanded that the owner of it wake up the marquis and tell him come out and fight. The voice told Theodore that a telegram had suddenly called the marquis to England. I never saw Theodore an expression of disgust on a man's face as was painted there on Theodore's. I really think I heard him cuss a little,"
remarked Bill in a rather sotto voice.
As Bill finished a long tale of his reminiscences of Theodore, he showed a letter received a few days before from Roosevelt, in which he asked him to join his Rough Riders. Bill always regretted that he wasn't with Roosevelt at San Juan Hill, but as Bill remarked that day:
'I think I'm getting too old to be of much use.'
In a recent interview Bill is reported as follows: "He seems to be somewhat worried to think he is getting too fat.
Guess if he'd come down here he could take a little of it off helping me to get my lay and I reckon he'd do more work than any two of my hired men."
"I think that he's glad that his job at the White House is most over. He tells me he's hankering to smell the pines of old Maine once more and he's the same as promised me to come down to my camps for a spell after election and practice a little on deer and moose round
here before he goes to Africa to hunt leopard and tigers. I know well enough that he'll come and bring some of the boys."
Mr. Sewall produced his last letter from the president dated at Oyster Bay,
June 26, and read from it:
'I think that Mr. Roosevelt will be better now that the strain of the Presidential nomination is off; as for me, I thoroughly enjoyed the job and never felt more vigorous as far as the work of the office is concerned. But it's some different from the work in the back woods and plains that you and I have done together in the past.
'I'd said I wouldn't accept another term and I believe the people think my word is good. I should be mighty sorry to have them think I was anything else. I believe in being a strong president and making the most of the office and using it without regard to the little, feeble, scolding men who yell about executive usurpation.
'I also believe it is not a good thing for any man to hold it too long. My ambition is, no matter in however humble
a manner and no matter however far off,
to travel in the footsteps of Washington
and Lincoln.'
'I told me," said Mr. Sewall, "that when the president put down his foot and said that it was no third term for him, that he meant what he said. That's the way he has of doing. I found that out years ago, sir."
And now Bill Sewall is counting the days till Taft succeeds Roosevelt in the White House, and the peerless sportsman comes back again to the Maine woods, where he was taught his first lessons in woodcraft, hunting and fishing by his bosom friend, Hon. William W. Sewall.
Perhaps he will induce Bill to go lion hunting with him in Africa. When Bill was asked if he was going to Africa, he put in a fresh chew of spruce gum and blinked one of his blue eyes.—Maine Woods.

The Sulker.
Heaven defend us from living with a sulker. The angry man or woman is not especially pleasant company; but as a general rule his or her society is temporary; the sulker you have always with you.
Temper can clear the atmosphere and make the sun shine all the brighter;
sulks is a perpetual mugginess that nothing can penetrate.
Temper is tangible; even the sulker at times falls to know the cause of his lowering spirits; the victim never knows it.
One can have no common ground on which to get back at the sulker. You might as well reconcile yourself to living in the shadow of a black cloud of perpetual disfavor.
Don't try to scatter this cloud; the more efforts you make the more threatening it grows. Escape is the only cure.
If it is your ill luck to live with a sulker get over letting it worry you.
Take it easy and say nothing. By and by he or she will come round and conde-scend to speak again. The coming-round process will be very much quicker and attended with much less unpleasantness than if the rest of the family appear anxious.
If you are the sulker fight the habit as one would the snail; the maulers of this ugly trait are deep, and as far as patent process has been discovered for their removal.
If you have cause for a grievance, speak it out. Don't harbor it till your mouth droops, your brow is drawn, and you look and are generally unlovely.
Brooding over troubles is the surest way to hatch out a new batch of them.
Wrongs that can be adjusted at the moment need a surgical operation after they have been nourished in sulky silence for days.
If you want to be unwellcome, sulky;
should you hanker after a limited friendship, sulky; as you aim to be unloved even by those from whom love is your right, get into the way of pampering
your grievances.
Mourning Colors.
As death is the exact opposite of life,
it is natural that the living, who see one of their number pass away, should express grief at their departure. From this feeling comes the "outward trappings of woe," as Hamlet calls mourning.
But it is somewhat strange that these outward trappings should differ so largely. The following are the various colors used for mourning in different countries, together with the reasons
given for the selection:
Black—Expresses privation of light.
Worn throughout Europe and America.
Scarlet—Mourning color. Occasionally worn by French kings.
Yellow—The sear and yellow leaf.
Egypt and Burmah. In Brittany the widows' caps among the peasants are yellow.
Purple and Violet—To express royalty. Mourning for cardinals and kings of France. Violet color, mourning for Turkey.
White—Emblem of "white handed hope."
Blue—Blue—Bokhara mourning. The significance of the selection is not known.
Pale Brown—Earth. Ethiopia and Abyssinia.

WHAT IS RHEUMATISM?
Well Known Remedy That Absolutely
Cures This Dread Disease.
No other disease is so painful as rheumatism. Uric Acid crystals are deposited in and about the joints, and that is called rheumatism. The only way in which this painful and dangerous disease can be absolutely cured is with Neuralgic Anodyne, a remedy that has an entirely different action from anything else.
Small doses are taken internally that reach the nerve centers and prevent the formation of Uric Acid. It is also rubbed on the affected parts, quickly relieving the pain, reducing the rheumatic fever, and restoring health
to the aching tissues and muscles.
A large sized bottle of Neuralgic Anodyne costs but 25c, and it is so successful in curing rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, toothache and relieving bruises and sprains that the proprietors, The Twitchell-Champlin Co., Portland, Me., authorize dealers everywhere to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

Champion Lady Fishers.
Ruth Cole and Flora Martin are the champion lady fishers of our town up to date. One day last week they captured over 100 perch and humpback. Miss Martin owned the day's achievement by landing a fine two pound pickerel.

James Ring and Frank Hayes went to Shelburne on the excursion, Sunday.
Mr. and Mrs. Walter Penley are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a baby boy.

Benjamin Wells, a former resident of this town, is very ill with typhoid-pneumonia at Portland. Mrs. Orpha King of this place is caring for him.

The Ladies Benefit Association will hold their fair early in September, two afternoons and evenings. An entertainment will be given each evening.

Winifred Morgan of Sanford visited friends in town the latter part of the week. Sunday he went to South Paris where he has a position with the Paris Mfg. Co.

Hay is nearly over. A light crop has been cut and with present prices for grain it would look like a big decline in price of cows and young stock this fall and winter.

Sometime ago we prophesied at least three marriages for the summer in this vicinity. So far two have taken place as Alva Noyes and Gladys Cole were married by Rev. Seth C. W. Richardson, clerk. The other five members are Wesley Ring, M. H. Harrington, Arthur Tracy, J. A. Fairbanks and E. H. Pike.

EAST OTISFIELD.

J. D. Howe has been at home doing his hay.

D. L. Holden seems more comfortable at this writing.

Mrs. Lizzie Edwards of Norway recently visited her aunt, Mrs. Abbie Thurlow.

Virginia Greenleaf of Auburn spent last week at her uncle's, P. C. Greenleaf's.

Helen Andrews of Auburn, who has been visiting Mrs. Howe, has returned to her home.

Mrs. and Mrs. John Cleaveland have been on a visit to their mother, Mrs. Melinda Cleaveland.

Mrs. Deborah Hill and Mrs. Ina (Cushman) Frost of Norway visited at J. D. Holden's, Tuesday.

Edie M. Jackson of Boston recently visited her sister, Mrs. F. E. Stone, and other friends in this place.

Mrs. E. S. Greenleaf was pleasantly remembered on her 86th birthday, recently passed, by souvenir birthday cards from members and friends of the I. S. S., for which she returns gratitude.

Mrs. E. R. Stone and Mrs. L. Spurr spent last Friday at Crescent Lodge on the shore of Lake Thompson with a party of friends from Portland. July twelve dined together and a merry time was enjoyed.

Onfield Grange is in a prosperous condition, new members are coming in at every meeting. Mrs. Sybil Lamb and John Bean attended a recent meeting when third and fourth degrees were conferred on a class and ice cream and cake served. They reported a fine entertainment.

Mrs. J. F. Whitman spent last week with her daughter, Mrs. W. F. Smith. Monday, the 20th, being her birthday about 20 members and friends of the Golden Rule society met with her at the pleasant home of Mrs. Smith and enjoyed a most pleasant afternoon. The I. S. S. records from Mrs. Edna Fields' photograph were enjoyed. Mrs. Smith served delicious ice cream and cake.

Mrs. Whitman was the recipient of a pretty souvenir from each friend. It was a great pleasure for Mrs. Whitman and she wishes to take this opportunity of expressing her appreciation to each and all for the rays of sunshine cast on her by the Golden Rule society.

Mrs. George Carter of Norway spent last week with her brother, George Edwards.

Mrs. V. A. Rawson and little son of Massachusetts are visiting relatives in this place.

Mrs. Mary Scribner and son, Walter, of Oxford spent Sunday with relatives in this place.

Elvira Edwards returned home from Norway where she has been visiting her cousin, Guy Carter.

Mrs. M. C. Kemp and daughter, Lena, returned from Athens, Friday, where she has been visiting her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hunnewell of Mechanic Falls spent Saturday and Sunday in town. Mrs. S. L. Dingler returned home with them to Mechanic Falls.

HEBRON.

Birth Celebrated in Blueberry Pasture.
Last Thursday about 20 neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Marshall accepted an invitation to pick blueberries in their pasture. A picnic dinner was enjoyed by all. The dinner was in honor of the birthday of Mr. Marshall and Mrs. F. W. Cushman, one birthday coming the day before and the other the day after. Mrs. Marshall recited an original poem appropriate to the occasion.

H. M. Knight of Jamaica Plain, Mass., has been the guest of A. M. Richardson and family.

F. R. Glover and wife, formerly of Hebron, now of Framingham, Mass., are visiting friends in town.

Mrs. Florence Pinkham and two children of Newton, Mass., are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Donham.

Minola Hutchins, daughter of Elmer Hutchins, who went to Auburn for a visit, is ill with scarlet fever. Mrs. Hutchins has gone to take care of her.

A heavy shower and wind shower passed over this section last Thursday. Considerable damage was done.

John Pettengill and wife of Auburn are visiting Lorena Winslow.

Nathan Spydell starts out West next week. He intends to hire out harvesting.

Mrs. Cora Whitman and daughter, Flora, and Flora Record went to East Buckfield, Sunday.

South Paris 6; Hebron 3.

Despite the rain Saturday afternoon, South Paris and Hebron played their game at the High school grounds at South Paris.

The South Paris team changed the position of a number of its men during the week. Wilson going to first, Pike to third and Wheeler to left field. Berry, a former South Paris boy who is visiting here, played short-stop. One could not tell by the game Saturday whether the change or not. Wheeler's work in his new position was one of the features of the game. Pike had no chance to show what he could do. Wilson was charged with three errors, two of which were particularly plausible, but the other which cost Paris two runs should have been an easy out.

Rich did good work pitching for Paris. Hebron got only six hits and Rich struck out ten men, none of his five passes figured in the run getting.

L. Pike pitched well for Hebron but the Paris team seemed to get most of their hits at the time when they needed them most. Score:
